What is Forex?

What is Forex?

Forex trading means buying one currency and selling another at the same time. It's like exchanging money when you travel, but here it's done online to make profit. Traders try to earn money from the changes in exchange rates, for example buying US dollars when the price is low and selling when it goes up.

Foreign Exchange → Forex

It's the global marketplace where people, banks, and businesses exchange one country's currency for another. The short form is FX or Forex.

- Currencies always trade in pairs: For example, GBP/USD means how many US dollars you get for one British pound.
- Exchange rates keep changing: The price of one currency compared to another goes up and down due to supply, demand, economy, politics, and global events.
- It's everywhere: Whenever someone travels abroad, buys something in another currency, or invests internationally, forex is happening.
- World's biggest financial market: More than $7 trillion is traded daily, much larger than the stock market.

Offline Example:

At the airport, you exchange £1000
and get $1200 because the rate is
1 GBP = 1.20 USD

You enjoyed your trip and had a great time,
but let's say it was fully sponsored, so you never had to spend your own money.

Offline Example:

After your trip, you return to the UK.

Now the rate has changed to

1 GBP = 1.10 USD.

Your Profit £90

Your original £1000

You exchange your $1200 back into pounds. At this new rate, you get about £1090.

Problems with the Offline:

If you physically exchange money at an airport, bank, or money changer. You buy one currency with another, hold it, and then exchange back later hoping the rate has changed in your favor but there are many problems with this method.

High Fees & Spreads

Airports and money changers charge big margins, so you lose profit before trading even starts.

Slow & Time-Consuming Transactions

You must physically exchange cash, which takes time and effort.

Limited Access & Security

You can only trade during working hours and in specific locations. You can not always carry cash with you.

Static Prices & Low Profits

Rates don't change drastically in short periods, you always get day end price.

What is Meta Trader 5?

MetaTrader 5 (MT5) is a software platform used for online trading in financial markets like forex, stocks, commodities, and indices.

It's basically a trader's workspace, where you can:

- See live price charts of different currencies and assets
- Place buy or sell orders instantly, trade even when you are sleeping
- Use technical indicators to analyze the market
- Place auto Take Profit points anywhere on the chart
- MT5 lets you trade forex, stocks, commodities, indices, and even futures in one platform
- Multiple timeframes, technical indicators, and drawing tools to study price movements in detail

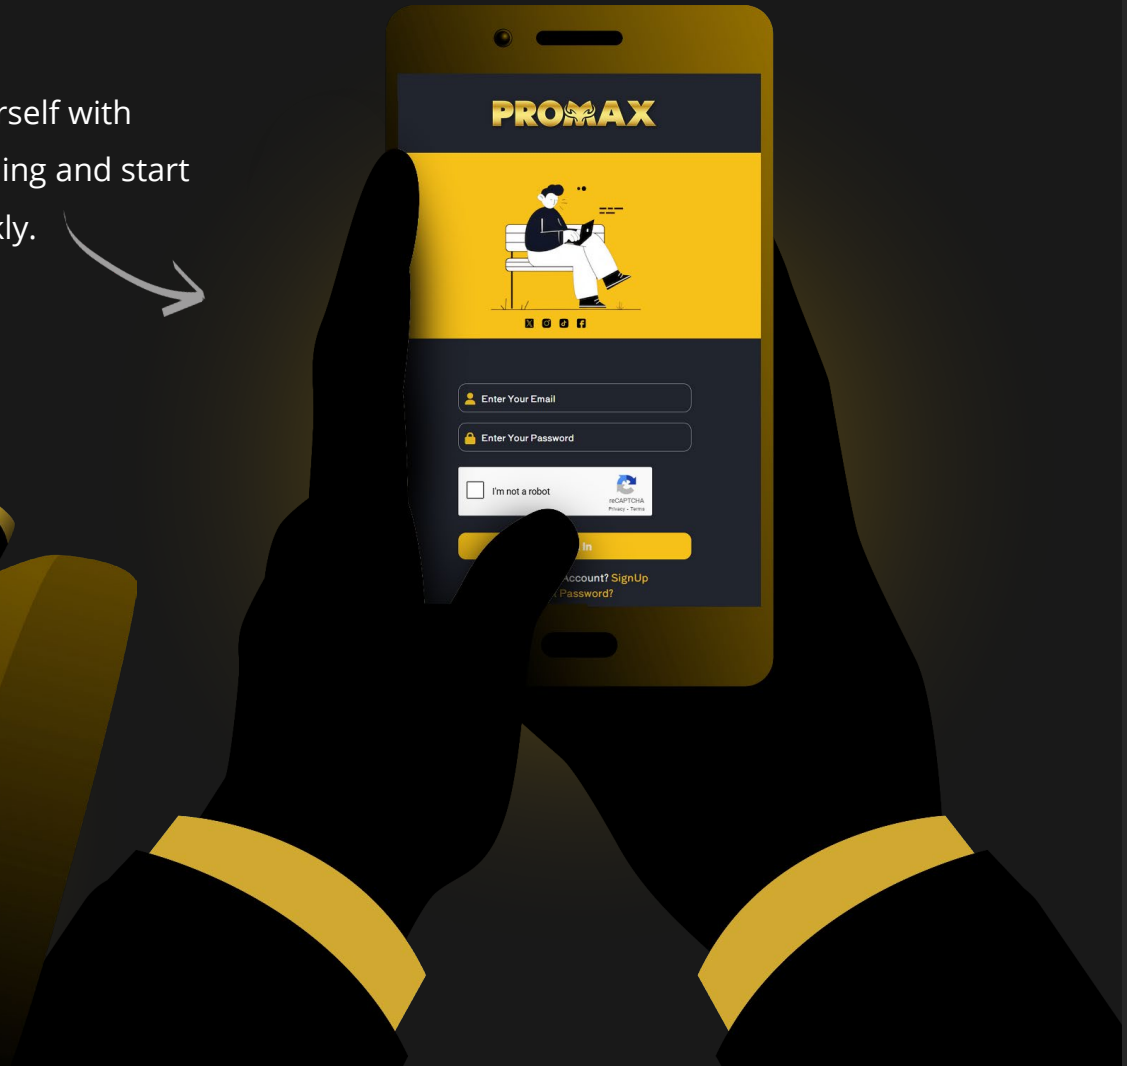

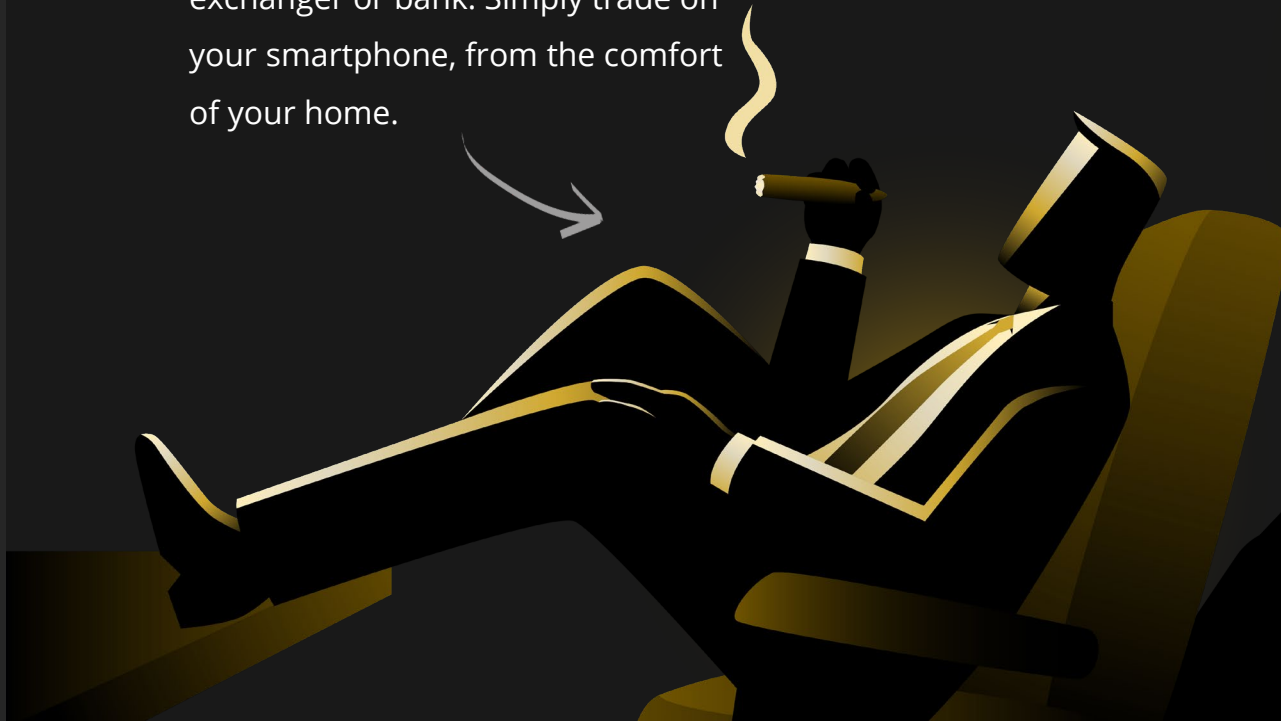

In simple words: MT5 is like a powerful app that connects you to the global financial markets, giving you tools to analyze, trade, and manage investments.

Meta Trader 5 Example:

You don't need to visit a money exchanger or bank. Simply trade on your smartphone, from the comfort of your home.

PAMM Accounts

PAMM Accounts

A PAMM account in ProMax (Percentage Allocation Management Module) is a managed trading service where investors allocate their funds to a professional trader (called a PAMM Manager).

Here's how it works:

- The PAMM Manager trades with their own money plus the investors' pooled funds.
- Profits and losses are distributed automatically among all investors based on their share in the pool.
- The Manager earns a performance fee or commission from the profits generated.

This allows investors to benefit from the expertise of skilled traders without trading themselves, while managers get rewarded for their performance.
